Investment Objective and Strategy

The fundamental investment objective of First Trust NASDAQ® Clean Edge® Green Energy ETF (the “First Trust ETF”) is to replicate, to the extent possible, the performance of an index of U.S. listed companies designed to track the performance of clean energy companies engaged in manufacturing, development, distribution and installation of clean-energy technologies including, but not limited to, solar photovoltaics, wind power, advanced batteries, fuel cells, and electric vehicles, initially the NASDAQ® Clean Edge® Green Energy IndexSM.

The NASDAQ® Clean Edge® Green Energy IndexSM is a modified market capitalization weighted index designed to track the performance of clean energy companies that are publicly traded in the United States and includes companies engaged in manufacturing, development, distribution and installation of emerging clean-energy technologies including, but not limited to, solar photovoltaics, wind power, advanced batteries, fuel cells, and electric vehicles.

Risk

The First Trust ETF provides exposure to its new index by investing all or substantially all of its assets in an underlying U.S. index fund known as First Trust NASDAQ® Clean Edge® Green Energy Index Fund (the “Underlying Fund”), which is managed by the First Trust ETF’s portfolio advisor.

The risks associated with an investment in the First Trust ETF is discussed in the First Trust ETF’s most recent prospectus.

Results of Operations

General

The First Trust ETF’s net asset value as of June 30, 2023 was $12,683,983 or $22.25 per unit. The First Trust ETF’s net asset value as of December 31, 2022 was $11,533,926 or $20.97 per unit.

For the six-month period ended June 30, 2023, the First Trust ETF paid total cash distributions of $0.0250 per unit. In addition, the First Trust ETF declared cash distributions of $0.0250 per unit for record date of June 30, 2023 with payment date of July 10, 2023.

Investment Performance

For the six-month period ended June 30, 2023, the First Trust ETF returned 6.35% compared to the S&P 500® Index (the “benchmark”) return of 14.16%. Unlike the benchmark, the First Trust ETF’s return is net of fees and expenses.

The First Trust ETF’s only holding, the Underlying Fund, held 64 equity securities as of June 30, 2023. The top ten equity holdings for the Underlying Fund accounted for 57.59% of the portfolio within the Underlying Fund.

The Underlying Fund underperformed the benchmark during the period mostly due to stock selection in Information Technology and an overweight allocation to the Utilities sector. An underweight position in the Health Care sector, which performed poorly, and an overweight allocation to Information Technology countered the underperformance.

The Underlying Fund’s top five stocks by contribution to return were Tesla, Inc., ON Semiconductor Corporation, First Solar, Inc., Allegro MicroSystems, Inc., and Universal Display Corporation. The bottom five stocks by contribution to return were Enphase Energy, Inc., Rivian Automotive, Inc., Wolfspeed, Inc., SunPower Corporation, and Sunrun Inc.

The First Trust’s ETF’s exposure to the U.S. dollar contributed negatively to its absolute performance during the period as the U.S. dollar depreciated 2.22% against the Canadian dollar from December 31, 2022, to June 30, 2023.

Recent Developments

The clean energy industry has underperformed broader markets in the first half of 2023. Domestic clean energy strategies outperformed global strategies but still underperformed the S&P 500. Electric and autonomous vehicle companies have been a positive driver for returns while solar and wind companies have been a drag for the most part. Clean energy funds, in general, have also experienced net outflows since October of 2022. Clean energy stocks are a part of the “long duration” group of equities which are negatively affected by rising rates. While rate movements have stabilized compared to 2022, clean energy companies continue to underperform other long duration equities and ESG groups. The underperformance and high outflows suggest the clean energy segment has fallen out of favor with investors particularly in the solar and wind industries. The poor sentiment toward clean energy is particularly difficult to justify as there has been a global push by various governments to accelerate investment in the space namely through the Inflation Reduction Act and RePowerEU proposal. According to Bloomberg Intelligence, the median forward 12-month EV-to-EBITDA multiple is 12x and 10.4x for the solar and wind industries, respectively, while the multiple is 10.9x for the Bloomberg World Index. These industries are trading at record low valuations with positive tailwinds from normalizing supply chains, softening commodity prices, and government incentives. While the clean energy sector has lagged in the recovery seen in other high growth industries so far in 2023, we still believe there is an opportunity in the space. Clean energies are poised to be the fastest growing energy source in the world and many companies that will lead the transition are currently trading at attractive valuations. We see potential for upward revisions in analysts’ forecasts for 2024-2026 numbers as supply chain and commodity headwinds brought on by Covid-19 continue to ease and firms face favorable economics created by government subsidies to help sustain growth.

(1) Management expense ratio is based on total expenses (excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs) for the stated period/year, including the First Trust ETF's proportionate share of the MER of the Underlying Fund in which the First Trust ETF has invested, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period/year.

(2) The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period/year. This includes the First Trust ETF's proportionate share of the commissions of Underlying Fund in which the First Trust ETF has invested.

(3) The First Trust ETF's portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the First Trust ETF's portfolio advisor manages its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the First Trust ETF buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the period/year. The higher a First Trust ETF's portfolio turnover rate in a period/year, the greater the trading cost payable by the First Trust ETF in the year, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the period/year. There is not necessarily a relationship between high turnover rate and the performance of a First Trust ETF.
